BELIEVED TO BE DERANGED.

While apparently mentally unbalinced, Joe Chaudet, 50 years old, of Frand Rivers, Saturday afternoon slashed his abdomen with a small ocket knife so severely that he died Sunday morning at 3:30 o'clock at Riverside hospital. Chaudet was at the home of his brother-in-law, L. P. Holland, who resides two miles from the city on the Blandville road. When discovered he was in a small coom stabbing the knife into himself and put up a manful fight when Chaudet is a prosperous farmer of Livingston county, and was owner of a farm of 500 acres. He left his home Thursday and came to Paducah, but his whereabouts are unaccounted for until he arrived at the home of Mr. Holland Saturday morning. He appeared unusually despondent. He went to a small room used by a servant, and it was there in the afternoon he was found using the knife. After he was found the knife was taken away from him and physicians were called. The knife blade had punctured the intestines in many places and his case was regarded as hopeless. He was removed to Riverside hospital in the ambulance of Mattil, Efinger &

Roth in an effort to save his life. His body was shipped to his home near Grand Rivers yesterday afternoon at 3:40 o'clock and the funeral took place this afternoon with burial in the Chaudet cemetery. He is sur-vived by a wife and four children, and one brother, who resides in California. Chaudet married Miss Pertia Holland. Acting Coroner C. W. Emery held an inquest yesterday and the verdict was that he came to his death as a result of wounds inflicted by his own hands. Evidence was introduced that Chaudet was at one time in an asylum.

It may be accepted as settled now that the Republican party is progressive in its policies. The president in advocating an employers' liability amendment, federal incorporation of interstate commerce concerns; opening of corporation books, the corporation tax, the extension of federal regulation of railroads, leasing 17. 6504 of public fuel lands and water power 18......6499 sites, systematic improvement of 19......6518 water ways, the postal savings bank. and the revision of the tariff by a commission, has aligned himself on the progressive side. Theodore Roosevelt has demonstrated that those reactionary leaders, whom he defeated at the last national convention, will stay licked. But while the president is progressive, he is also conservative, disinclined to follow unstable zealots of reform, and considerate of property rights. He will not disturb the confidence of the ousiness and industrial world.

His attitude of conservative pro gressiveness, as long as Roosevelt, idol of the insurgent element re D. With five candidates for the gubernatorial nomination there is great danger that a state convention would develop into another Music Hall affair and if so that party defeat would certainly follow, It is true that a good many objections are made against the state primary even when they are worse, Personally the News would rather see an old-time convention, but old imes do not come back, and as everything in politics seem to get worse instead of better, a state convention river and harbor improvements. next year would likely be about the worst ever .- Elizabethtown News.

LORIMER SCANDAL

COMMITTEE WILL BEGIN ITS WORK ON TUESDAY.

Chicago Will Be Scene of First Day's Investigation of Election of William Lorimer.

Chicago, Sept. 19 .- Investigation of the bribery scandal attending the lection of William Lorimer to the United States senate will be begun n Chicago Tuesday by the special sub-committee of the senate committee on privileges and elections, appointed for the purpose last June.

No meeting has been held yet and the plan of procedure is still to be determined. Whether public hearings will be he'd as in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation, is uncertain, but the impression prevails that the senators who will conduct the probe are not anxious to produce any more sensations than necessary.

Senator Julius Caesar Burrows, of Michigan, standpatter who recently was defeated in his fight for re-nomination, is chairmen of the commit-Other members are Senators Dillingham, of Vermont, Gamble, off South Dakota, and Heyburn, of Idaho Republicans, and Senators James B. Frazier, of Tennessee, Paynter, of Kentucky, and Johnston, of Alaama, Democrats.

Without exception the members of the committee are known for their firmness and strictness of views.

In all probability the committee will remain in Chicago not more than three or four days. It is possible that one day's session will be held in Springfield and the rest of the time the deliberations will be conducted in Washington,

A conclusion by the committee that foundation existed for the charg es that Lorimer's seat was bought would force the senate to oust the Illinois senator. It is planned to complete the investigation in time or the committee to make its report. when congress convenes in Decem-

Evidence gathered by State's Attorney Wayman in the Lee O'Neil Browne case, will, be presented to the committee and it is possible that some of the legislators who have figured prominently in the scandal may be called to testify. Gov. Deneen and Senator Lorimer also may be called as witnesses.

Proprietary Medicine.

There have been plenty of them, no doubt, and they have been vigorously condemned—so vigorously that every sort of medicine the formula of which is privately owned is condemned and pronounced "uncthical" by the Medical Profession.

Eckman's Alterative deserves attention, not because it is a "proprietary" but because it really has cured many cases of Tuberculosis. If it is a fraud it needs exposing badly, because a number of cured Consumptives will need to find some other reason for being well.

Henry Clay said he would rather beright than be President. Is it not better for Eckman's Alterative to make cures than to be ethical

In July, 1965, my physician sent me to Texas, from there to Colorado. I became worse and was sent home to die. I heard of Eckman's Alterative, began treatment, and was cured. I carnestly recommend becoming for Waterloo. A new boom is being made for her at the wharf-boat.

THE CRUCIAL MOMENTS. CHAPTER XII.

Mrs. Haldane is Surprised. The Haldane family usually partook of luncheon together. Breakfast was an irregular meal taken at different limes by different members of the ousehold, and dinner usually brought many engagements which widely separated them. A few days after the automobile ride, while the excitement over the proposed granting to the Gotham Freight Traction company of the New York Street Car company franchise was still at its height, Mr. and Mrs. Haldane and their daughter, after waiting sometime for the arrival of Livingstone Haldane, sat down to incheon without him. The conversation turned, as it usualdid, on the campaign. Haldane oked worried. Well he might be! The bold and decisive action of Gormly, his adroitness in wresting the pledge that he had done from the mayor, the fact that the city was now thoroughly aroused and as never before to the situation, were calculated to increase his anxiety, which had grown with the progress of the campaign. The brilliant stroke of Gormly when he offered ten million dollars for the franchise and thereafter compelled Warren to declare the granting of it | to depend upon the election had greatly increased the probabilities of de-

There were indications also, which added to Haldane's troubles, that his own connection with the Gotham Freight Traction company would soon be known, and that there would be disclosed to New York at the same time the operation of that gigantic company, its ramifications, and the control it had of public utilities in every

It was Eleanor who opened the conversation, after the luncheon had been served and the servants had withdrawn.

"Father," she said, "I have been thinking for some days now that I ought to tell you something that happened the other night."
"What night, Eleanor?"

"The night Mr. Gormly made his famous speech in the city hall square. and who is glad to see people do things." "I presume," said Haldane, who had ald little but had thought deeply, "that such a proposition, if definitely made, would be made to me.'

"Well then, of course," said his wife, "you will give but one answer." "And what would you suggest that

"Well, what does he mean then by telling you that he loves you? Loves!' sneered the older woman disdain-

"Yes," said her father, "it seems to me a rather remarkable course for a man to address a woman in that way, and yet not complete his proposition." "He said that something was impending which made him feel that it was proper to tell me this now."

"Something impending?" "Some sort of disclosure, I inferred," answered the girl, "that might affect to put such questions to me him or possibly me."

Haldane started. agree with your mother. There is no Freight Traction company is. We insult in the honest affection of any know that it is robbing the people onest man. Haldane spoke sternly, and his wife Eleanor, however, was not so easily silenced.

have to decide myself." "Quite so, quite so," said Haldane. "I have no other idea."

At this moment, which threatened to grow more tense, Livingston Haldane entered the room. He was greatly perturbed and alarmed.

"Father," he said abruptly, "I want to see you alone for a moment or two please!

"What has happened?" began Haldane, rising. "Why, Mr. Gormly-- But I would rather see you alone." "Has he made a proposition to you for your sister's hand?" questioned Mrs. Haldane,

"What!" exclaimed her son.

"Eleanor," explained his mother "has just stated that Mr. Gormly took advantage of your kindness to him the other night, after that disgraceful episode in the city hall, to make love to her in the tonneau of the car."

"You don't say!" exclaimed the young man, apparently neither shocked nor surprised. "Well, he's a good

What did you say to him, sis?" "It is very unpleasant to me to have these matters discussed in this way,' answered Eleanor, her face blushing. "As I have explained to father and mother, Mr. Gormly did me the honor to say that he cared a great deal for He did not ask me to be his wife although he expressed his intention of doing so. He said that certain things had made him anticipate his purpose and state his feelings toward me now without waiting, as he had expected to do, until the end of the election." "What things?" asked young Hal-"Things that concerned him,

"Political."

"Very well. If your mother and sister will excuse us, we will go into the library." "Certainly," answered Mrs. Haldane making virtue of necessity. "If they concern me or my rela tion to Mr. Gormly," said Eleanor, "I should like to know them immediate "They concern us all," he answered "And, by the way," he added, "I was going to withhold it; but I might as well give it to you now. Here's a letter to you from Mr. Gormly. He saw you. I was going to talk to father about this other matter before I gave it to you; but you can read it over while we are gone."

"What was it you wished to say to me, Livingstone?" began the older man as they entered the library.

"Father," returned his son with be wildering abruptness, "I learned at headquarters today that you were the head and front of the Gotham Freight Traction company and all the rotten lot against whom we are fighting." "From whom did you learn this?"

asked the older man quietly. "From Gormly himself."

"Does anybody else know it?" Freight Traction company, and in that respect against you, he supposed I would want to draw out of it, and he would give me an opportunity, so that I could leave honorably before the

He wore a full equestrian outfit, including white stock, riding boots and breeches and several pieces of jewelry. He did not rein up his horse at the curb and dismount, as is customary here, even on Saturday night.

Straight for the door of the taproom strode the faithful steed, but whether his rider intended ordering "horse's neck" for the animal and a plain beer for himself or whether he merely sought a white soda for his own use and some "buck" beer for Dobin is not known.

Alas, there was one pedestrian who did not flee, even at the apparition of a leading citizen entering the bar-room via horseback. It was Patrolman William Murphy, of the central district, and he knew there was nothing in the manual which
